

PRISM 2017 DATES

Practice Reflection and Improvement Short Module

Do you want to hear about local child protection cases? Do you want to reflect, with multi-agency peers, on this challenging area of practice? Do you want to contribute to improving child protection practice in North Ayrshire?

If you have answered yes to any of the above then PRISM is for you. Practice Reflection and Improvement Short Modules, are unique learning opportunities that combine hearing about the findings from audit and evaluation of local practice, with reflecting on practice and considering how we continuously improve how well we protect children and young people in North Ayrshire.

Whether you are involved in child protection work on a day to day basis, or are rarely involved; whether you are newly in practice or have 20 years under your belt, PRISM has something to offer you.

Each PRISM features a different topic (attend them all!) and all are based on learning from local child protection practice.

This model, developed by North Ayrshire Child Protection Committee, has gained national recognition and this is what some participants have said:

"Use of real world local case was super and created a sense of reality and practice which we meet with day to day."

"I think every team should be exposed to this as a way to tracing how improvement plans evolve and what is the context stimulus."

"It has got to feel real and this is courageous and necessary – properly set in context, it can be powerful and non-critical (for practitioners involved in cases)."
